RAF PLANES SMASH TWO NAZI CITIES

Death Claims C. H. Isaly and F. D. Glosser

Illnesses Are Fatal to Dairy Company Head and Marion-Bucyrus Manufacturer.

Charles H. Isaly

Charles Herbert Isaly, 54, president and general manager of the Isaly Dairy Co., died at 4 a. m. today in Mt. Carmel hospital, Columbus.

Mr. Isaly was taken suddenly ill last Monday morning. Wednesday he was taken to Mt. Carmel hospital for treatment where his condition was reported grave. Several members of the family were with him at the time of his death.

Death was caused by intestinal trouble. Mr. Isaly had undergone an operation last June and apparently had recovered almost completely, having been active for the last month. His most recent illness developed suddenly and unexpectedly.

His death closed a career in the dairy business that started humbly with his work as an ice cream maker in his father's dairy at Mansfield. He had advanced to the presidency of Isaly Dairy Companies of Marion, Columbus, Youngstown and Pittsburgh, each with large plants and together maintaining 333 retail stores in Ohio and Pennsylvania.

Native of Ohio

He was born in Monroe county, O., where his grandfather had settled upon coming to this country from Switzerland to continue his business of making cheese. When Mr. Isaly was two years old the family moved to Mansfield where his father, William, and his mother, Louisa Lude Isaly, started operating a modest dairy farm. The dairy farm prospered and Mr. Isaly's father developed ice plant steadily, adding pasteurization equipment and finally expanding it into a large dairy.

Mr. Isaly in the meantime had spent his boyhood on a farm near Mansfield, had his early schooling there and later attended normal school at Ada, O. He taught a couple terms of school in rural communities near Mansfield and then when about 21 went into his father's business as an ice cream maker. He also served in other capacities that gave him a general knowledge of the dairy business.

Married in 1911

His father bought the Loiselle Bread & Milk Co. of Mansfield and consolidated the two businesses, and among the employes of the Loiselle concern that were retained in the new enterprise was Miss Bertie Jane Deardorff. She and Mr. Isaly had been acquainted prior to consolidation of the businesses, and two years afterward, in 1911, she and Mr. Isaly were married in Mansfield.

They made their home on a farm near Lexington, in Richland county, for three years, and then in the fall of 1914 came to Marion where Mr. Isaly became manager of a dairy his father had purchased from the Marion Pure Milk Co. operated by a corporation headed by D. E. Gardner. The business passed to the control of Mr. Isaly's father in 1914 and in the following year Mr. Isaly and his family came to Marion to operate it.

23 Stores in Group

The business, then small, grew [illegible] in the following years to [illegible] present embraces not only the plant out some 23 retail stores in Marion and nearby [illegible].

The company operates [illegible] stores in Marion, one each in Delaware, Marysville, Urbana, Troy, Piqua, Bellefontaine, Canton, Wapakoneta, Lima, Fremont, Fostoria, Bowling Green, Tiffin, Galion and Norwalk, and has connections with dairy stores operated in Mt. Clyde, North Baltimore and Perrysburg. These stores all are affiliated with the Marion Dairy Co. The Youngstown unit has 150 stores, Pittsburgh 100 and Columbus 30. The Isaly Dairy Companies of which Mr. Isaly was president and Mansfield Isaly Dairy Co. of which he was a director has 30 stores.

Frank D. Glosser

Frank D. Glosser, 62, of 650 Mt. Vernon avenue, vice president and general manager of the Crawford Steel Foundry Co. in Bucyrus, died at 10 o'clock last night in the City hospital, following a long illness.

After undergoing an operation in a Columbus hospital in June Mr. Glosser's health improved and he returned to his office at the Bucyrus foundry in July, working for about a week. He suffered a relapse and for the last month had been confined to his bed and at home. His condition became worse Monday night and he was removed to the City hospital Tuesday morning.

A resident of Marion since early in 1900, he was actively associated with the industrial and civic life of the city.

Mr. Glosser came to Marion from Evansville, Ind., in January, 1904, as superintendent of the lighting department of the old Columbus, Delaware & Marion Electric Co.; a position he held nearly 15 years.

In 1918 he became identified with the Osgood company as manager and later as president of the newly-organized Commercial Steel Casting company, and upon the consolidation of the Osgood and Commercial Steel Casting companies in 1928, he became vice president, devoting his time and activities to the management of the latter organization.

In the spring of 1937 Mr. Glosser organized and became the vice president and general manager of the Crawford Steel Foundry Co. now engaged in full time war production.

Active In Civic Affairs

Mr. Glosser's civic interests included the Boy Scouts, Red Cross and community welfare activities. When the Harding Area Boy Scouts was organized in 1926, he was named its first president, a position he held through 1932, and at the time of his death he was a member of the board of trustees of the Boy Scout Reservation of Marion county. He was active in community drives, serving at one time as president of the Marion Community Fund, and was a member of the executive committee of the Marion County Chapter of the Red Cross from 1926 to 1929.

Mr. Glosser was a member of the First Presbyterian church and his fraternal affiliations were with the Masonic and Elks' lodges. He was a member of Marion Lodge No. 70, F. & A. M., Marion Chapter No. 62, R. A. M., Marion Council No. 22, R. & S. M., and Marion Commandery No. 36, Knights Templar, and Scioto Consistory of Columbus, and Marion Lodge No. 32, B. P. O. Elks. In Bucyrus he was a member of the Bucyrus Rotary club, and a number of years ago was a member and also served as president of the old Marion Commercial club, now disbanded.

Born In Bellville

A native of Bellville, O., where he was born Feb. 28, 1880, Mr. Glosser was the youngest child of Henry Glosser, a native of Frederick county, Md., and Julia Dillon Glosser, whose birthplace was Brooklyn, N. Y. His marriage to Miss Jessie Pickett of Harrisburg, Ill., took place Jan. 20, 1904, at that place.

Surviving with the widow are four children, Miss Catherine Glosser of Chicago, Francis and Robert Glosser of Bucyrus, and George Glosser, who is with the armed forces at Curacao, N. W. I. Surviving also are two brothers, E. E. Glosser of 477 Summit street, and Harry Glosser of Smarta, Ill., and one sister, Mrs. William Taylor of Long Beach, Calif.

Funeral services will be held Sunday at 3 p. m. at the home, with Rev. Howard L. Olewiler, pastor of the First Presbyterian church officiating. Following the services the body will be placed in the vault in the Marion cemetery where burial will be made Monday. Friends may call at the home after 7:30 o'clock tonight.

WITH INDUCTEES

Wayne Shaw, son of City Auditor and Mrs. Elmer Shaw of 224 Clover avenue, was among the Marion inductees who departed yesterday for induction at Ft. Benjamin Harrison, Ind. In a report yesterday in The Star his name was incorrectly listed as Wayne Short.

JAPANESE GRIP ON PACIFIC PUT TO STIFF TEST

U. S. Air and Naval Forces Win First Solomon Round; Battle Spreads.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28 — A raging battle to break a Japanese grip in southeastern New Guinea developed swiftly in crocodile-infested swamplands today as American naval and air forces emerged apparently victorious in the second round of the Solomon islands conflict.

Disappearance of a battered enemy fleet from the U. S.-controlled Tulagi area of the Solomons temporarily narrowed the struggle in the southwest Pacific to two Japanese footholds on New Guinea.

Milne Bay Battle

Enemy forces which landed two days ago at Milne bay, some 225 miles from the strong allied New Guinea base at Port Moresby and 420 miles from the Australian mainland, were pounded by an allied land-air attack that destroyed Japanese planes, troops, supplies and fuel dumps.

General MacArthur's Australian headquarters reported that allied airmen shot down 12 or 14 enemy planes during the day in fights over Milne bay and the Japanese base at Buna, 180 miles up the northeastern coast of New Guinea. Earlier Japanese losses at the swampy Milne bay landing included a transport, probably a carrier and six landing barges.

Meanwhile, a terse navy department communique reported that "Japanese surface forces appear to have withdrawn from the vicinity of our positions in the Tulagi area."

While modern naval warfare might result in turning a withdrawal into another large scale invasion attempt in a matter of days or even hours, the enemy's disappearance was regarded generally as a victory for U. S. marines and American naval and air forces.

While the navy earlier an-

Not Yet Major Victory

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28—An admonition against any descriptions of the current operations in the Solomon islands as having brought a major victory for the United Nations came today from one of the highest government authorities.

This authority, who preferred that his name not be used, said that there actually had been two phases of Japanese activities since American forces established themselves in the southeastern Pacific. And he said he was worried lest the press lead the country to believe a great, smashing victory had been achieved.

German Dive Bombers In Stalingrad Attack

Battle for Key Russian Steel City Nears Crisis; Reds Drive Germans Back Near Moscow.

By The Associated Press

MOSCOW, Aug. 28—The battle of strategic Stalingrad came to its crisis today as a powerful German onslaught drove to the distant approaches of the great Volga city and Nazi dive bombers began destructive mass attacks, but battlefront dispatches said a Nazi armored spearhead to the northwest had been cut off and encircled.

While the land and air battle for the "City of Stalin" raged to full violence, the Red army was hammering its own offensive in the suburbs of Nazi-held Rzhev where the Germans held out 130 miles from Moscow through last winter's Russian push.

Key To Victory

Red Star, declared that the fight for Stalingrad held "the key to victory," so important was regarded the great industrial town which sprawls for miles along the low west bank of the mighty Volga.

With the stiffening of the Russian 1st ditch stand there, dispatches declared that in one salient (presumably northwest of the city) the Russians had hurled the Germans back in local counter-attacks, recapturing three settlements.

The defenders were hardest pressed from the southwest where the Germans were reported charging over mounds of their own dead.

Pravda reported that a strong force of Nazi parachutists who landed behind the Stalingrad line and seized temporary control of a road junction had been wiped out.

Fighting for the Caucasus appeared moving at a slower pace now that the battles had moved into mountain passes more easily defended.

Red army men fell back again in the Prokhladnenski area of the Caucasus, but held firm at a junction of mountain roads south of Irasnodar, the mid-day communique announced.

The fortifications seized in the 16-day-old push west of Moscow were not identified.

"In another sector our troops, developing the offensive, occupied seven populated places," the communique said: "We destroyed 13 German tanks, 10 anti-tank guns and 25 trucks and captured two tanks, one armored car, several guns and other war material."

Two Breaks Closed Up

Two detachments from the Nazi pincers squeezing upon Soviet lines before Stalingrad in the Don-Volga corridor succeeded in penetrating the defenses, but both breaks were repaired by counter-attacks, the Russians said.

Russian dispatches declared the Germans had turned to bombing residential sections at the center of Stalingrad after raids on its military objectives yielded no important successes. Many homes were set aflame by the explosive pattern of hundreds of bombs.

Dozens of planes duelled over the streets at the approaches to the steel city. A Russian frontal assault was reported to have destroyed 60 tanks and killed hundreds of Germans to break up a Nazi spearhead striking from the northwest.

Field dispatches said troops from the Kalinin front had broken through three successive lines

FAIR PROGRAM ON NEXT WEEK

Racing, Horse Show, Circus Included Among Features.

The curtain will go up on a four-day program of horse racing, shows, exhibits and a score of other entertainment features when the gates open for the 92nd annual Marion County Fair next Tuesday at the fairgrounds.

Highlighting the four-day event will be a horse show, the first to be staged in the history of Marion, and the harness racing, headlined by two $1,000 stake events. Some of the finest saddle horses in the country will be here for the horse show to be staged Tuesday and Wednesday nights.

There will be races, in which some of the best horses in the country will be entered on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday afternoons.

Other Night Features

Gus Sun's circus will take the entertainment spotlight Thursday night and the Renfro Valley Barn Dance troup will be on the program for Friday night. Music will be furnished by the LaRue High school band Wednesday afternoon, the Marion Eagles band Thursday afternoon and the Pleasant school band, outfitted in new uniforms on Friday afternoon. Shows on the midway also promise to contribute their share to the entertainment program.

The Junior Fair parade will be held on Thursday afternoon and the livestock parade on Friday afternoon.

Entries in the various exhibits are being taken at the office of the secretary at 115 South Main street. Entries will close Saturday night at 9:30. Due to the fact there is no state fair this year, exhibits and entries promise to be of a high class and in larger numbers.

Horse Show Features

The horse show will include entries from stables in at least five states. The horses will be shown under saddles in three and five-gaited classes and driven to buggies in fine harness classes. There will be a western class, open to persons showing western horses and there will be a class for children riders. A highlight of the horse show will be a gay 90's exhibit when the riders will be costumed in riding togs of that period.

Premium money for the horse show amounts to $1,500 and purses for the three-day race program total $5,900.

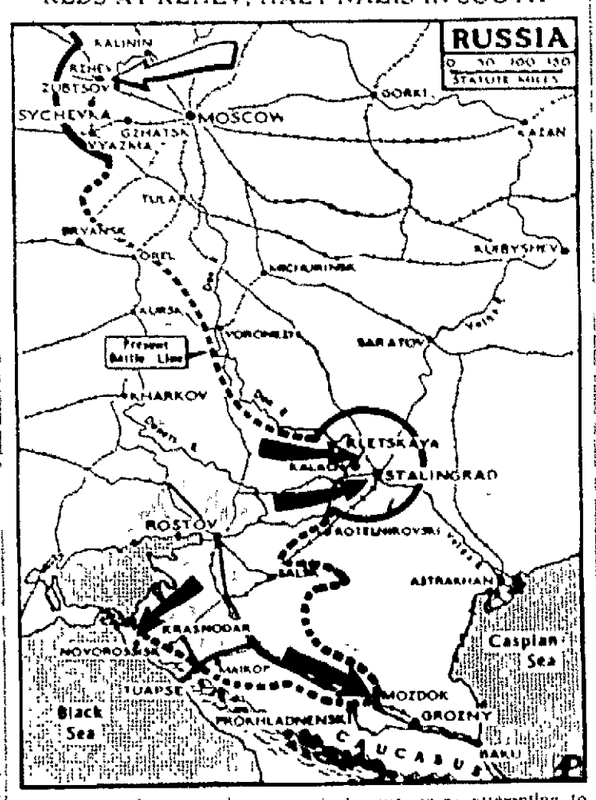

Gates will open at 6:30 a. m. and admissions will be charged on all days beginning Tuesday.

Chinese Forces Regain Chuhsien and Airfield

By The Associated Press

CHUNGKING, Aug. 28—The Chinese have reentered Chuhsien, western Chekiang province, and have reoccupied the great airfield just outside the city, most important of the east China bases from which Japan could be bombed, Chinese dispatches from the front declared today.

REDS AT RZHEV, HALT NAZIS IN SOUTH

Red army forces on the central front swept into the outskirts of Rzhev (open arrow) in a continuation of their counter-offensive, while their defenses checked the German push (black arrows) on Stalingrad. In the Caucasus, German tank units were attempting to break through in the Prokhladnenski and Mozdok areas, while Russian gunners were holding most of their hill positions south of Krasnodar. Broken line indicates the approximate present battle front.

Gen. Gregory Zhukov (above) is directing the Russian counter-attack northwest of Moscow that has resulted in the death of 45,000 Germans and the recapture of from 25 to 30 miles of territory, Russians reported. General Zhukov won fame last fall by turning back the Nazi drive for Moscow.

Marines Wipe Out Entire Jap Force in Makin Raid

Snipers Try To Pick Off Major Roosevelt, but Miss; 350 Enemy Defenders Killed.

By The Associated Press

PEARL HARBOR, T. H., Aug. 28—A force of 350 Japs—virtually every defender—was wiped out and all seaplane installations methodically wrecked by U. S. marines during the recent Makin island raid, now disclosed by eyewitnesses to have been a two-day job of slaughter and destruction.

Contrasting with earlier reports of a hit-and-run raid, the participants, including Major James Roosevelt, son of the President, made it clear that the scrappy marines even hunted for the few Jap stragglers still alive before withdrawing to ships.

And so stealthy was the landing during a moonless night on the northern most island of the Jap-held Gilbert group, 1,500 miles northeast of the Solomons, that the marines had been ashore for 20 minutes, deployed for battle, before the Japs discovered them.

"The morning of the second day, only eight Japanese were left on the island," related Lieut.-Col. Evans F. Carlson of Plymouth, Conn., commander of the marines.

Natives Help U. S.

"We wiped out all we could find and, after a checkup with the natives, found only two Japanese unaccounted for. I cannot disclose our casualties but will say the Japanese losses on land alone were more than 10 to 1 our loss, not counting the 150 Japs lost at sea or in planes."

Other dramatic episodes gleaned from the eyewitness account:

Jap snipers, strapped to coconut trees, fired at Major Roosevelt but missed. "I fired two shots at snipers," was all the eldest son of the President would say concerning his personal activity.

The islands' 1,706 natives gladly worked with the invaders and their king gave his sarong to Capt. James Davis of Evanston, Ill., who lost his pants in action. Captain Davis donned it.

Sergeant Jim Faulkner of Red Oak, Tex., caught four Jap bullets, muttered "dammit" each time, then carried on until led reluctantly away to an operating table. And there he bellowed at surgeons that he was being pampered.

Private John Hawkins of Southgate, Calif., killed three Japs before he was wounded so seriously that he was nursed aboard ship, virtually given up for dead. The next morning a stunned officer saw him hobbling about.

"I have a bunch of bullets in me if I walk about a bit," he said. He did.

By the second day, "there were

KASSEL, GDYNIA HIT IN GREAT AIR ATTACK

Locomotive and Plane Factories Target of Force; 30 Are Reported Lost.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Aug. 28—In twin raids on the key plane-producing center of Kassel and the Baltic port of Gdynia in former Poland, the RAF spread the massed might of its bombers last night from end to end of Germany, the British announced today.

To carry the great onslaught to smash the Nazi war machine across the breadth of Germany to Gdynia, the British had to fly more than 1,500 miles round-trip from their home bases under a moonlit sky.

This was another long step forward in the avowed British policy to help Soviet Russia—a smash at the Baltic harbor where the 26,000-ton German battleship Gneisenau was known to have been recently and again important base for U-boat operations against the Red navy's Baltic fleet.

Besides 30 bombers lost in what was called a "concentrated and effective" bombardment of Kassel, the air ministry announced that two fighter planes were downed in night sweeps over enemy-occupied France in which Hurricane fighter-bombers left two ships burning in the channel.

The flights were part of a steady procession by airmen of the United Nations to squeeze the enemy homeland in an ever tightening grip of fire and explosives.

Keeping up the attack on a day and night basis, fighter planes roared across the channel throughout the morning and in the afternoon a powerful force of bombers escorted by fighters swept eastward toward France.

By striking at Kassel with a force probably some 600 planes strong, Britain's big night raiders hit a source of Messerschmitt fighters and the site of the Nazis' biggest locomotive foundry.

(Kassel may have been chosen by the RAF as a particularly vulnerable spot in the German war machine. Hitler blamed part of the Germans' Russian winter disaster on frozen locomotives and promised that this winter there would be no such failure.)

Rail Lines Strained

(The vast job of keeping German armies supplied from the Atlantic to the Volga and from the Arctic to the Mediterranean under the pounding of the British and Russians and the destruction by saboteurs has put a telling strain on Nazi rail transport.

(The German high command acknowledged "material damage in residential quarters" and some civilian casualties in the Kassel attack.)

The loss of 30 bombers indicated that some 600 of the RAF's big planes made the raid. British losses on night raids have been roughly five per cent.

The raid was the heaviest of nine on Kassel since the start of the war and its costliest to the attackers, British sources said.

Kassel is 90 miles northeast of Frankfurt.

While the big bombers were striking at this root of Nazi airpower, fighters were maintaining almost ceaseless offensive patrol over Nazi-occupied France and there were indications of possible naval encounters in the English channel and the Kattegat.

Watchers on the British southeast coast reported the heavy roll of gunfire from out in the mists of the strait suggesting to some a sea battle in the region of the entrance to the North sea.

Similar cannonading was heard at Varberg, on the west coast of Sweden. Swedish reports said it appeared to come from warships embattled somewhere in the narrow waters of the Kattegat through which German vessels would have to pass between the North sea and their home bases.

Nazis Bomb England

German bombers, meanwhile, followed up light night attacks on northern England with a series of daylight attacks on widely separated areas. Two enemy planes bombed Bristol during the forenoon. Later a lone Nazi plane bombed a town in west England. One German fighter was reported shot down off the southwest coast.

With daylight came the RAF fighters again, keeping up a drumbeat of explosions which watchers on the English south coast said had rolled back from the French shore during the moonlit night. One deafening explosion, they said, indicated that an ammunition dump had been hit.

During almost every hour of day and night now, the great bombers and fighter fleets of the United States, Britain and Russia are unloading over Nazi targets

DESERTER IS SHOT IN CROWDED TRAIN

Military Policeman Kills Soldier in Cincinnati.

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI, Aug. 28—A soldier identified as Private William C. Blythe, 21, of Detroit, being returned to Fort Knox, Ky., to face desertion charges, was shot and killed in an escape attempt aboard a crowded train at the Union terminal here today.

Private Martin Lynn, 25, of Chicago, a military policeman of Fort Wayne, Ind., was injured in the struggle and Private Edward Foster, 21, of Detroit, a military trusty, was wounded.

Capt. Walter D. Stump, Fort Thomas, Ky., military policeman, said Lynn told him he shot Blythe when the latter drew an automatic pistol. Lynn said he did not know how Blythe had acquired the gun. Captain Stump identified Blythe as a deserter.

Lynn's first shot missed Blythe and struck Foster, but the second killed the accused deserter.

Lynn told Captain Stump that Blythe escaped here Aug. 15 while being returned from Detroit to Fort Knox after his original desertion and was recaptured three days ago in Detroit.

"I asked Foster to stay close to me on the trip to Fort Knox," Lynn said, "because I believed Blythe was a bad actor. When the three arrived in Cincinnati, Blythe, who was handcuffed, asked permission to go to the washroom. Lynn said he and Foster accompanied him. Blythe went inside the washroom, Lynn continued, and attempted to close the door. Lynn kicked it open.

Foster then noticed that Blythe had a gun and warned:

"Lynn, he's got a gun."

Lynn lurched at Blythe and was struck on the wrist with the butt of the pistol.

The washroom door slammed shut, with Lynn outside and Foster and Blythe inside.

Passengers gathered and Lynn warned them away. A moment later, Blythe, still handcuffed, came out, with the pistol drawn.

Lynn opened fire. The first bullet struck Foster in the shoulder. The second entered Blythe's chest. He ran a few steps and collapsed in the aisle of the crowded coach.

CALLS ON TEACHERS, STUDENTS TO DO BIT

McNutt Asks They Assume Heavier Duties.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28—Paul V. McNutt, federal security administrator and war manpower commission chairman, called on the nation's 31,000,000 teachers and students today to shoulder "new and heavier war duties" and asked school boards to reconsider their programs and responsibilities in the light of war needs.

"I urge you to put aside any thought of education as usual," he said in an address prepared for the opening of an institute sponsored by the U. S. office of education wartime commission.

McNutt announced yesterday that every able bodied college youth was destined for the armed forces and should realize that he cannot have assurance of remaining in school "for any specified period of time."

The announcement was made in a commission-approved report prepared by the special committee on utilization of colleges and universities for the purposes of the war, headed by Dr Edward C. Elliott, president of Purdue university.

Mindful of a prospective serious shortage of teachers, McNutt urged particularly that teachers stay at their posts unless drafted by the army or navy on war industry for "work of higher priority rating."

"It is the patriotic duty of teachers to continue teaching, despite the lure of service on other fronts and despite the lure of higher wages," he said.

HENDERSON HAS 500 GOOD SOLDIERS FOR ARMY

Men Spend Summer Drilling In Ohio Pen.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Aug 28—Warden Frank Henderson of Ohio penitentiary here has 450-500 men he can recommend as soldiers of the army.

This is based on a summer of drilling by prisoners who took basic military training under the guidance of Henderson, former head of the Ohio national guard.

A number of technicalities would have to be ironed out before the men could enter the army, he said.

The army now admits only first offenders Henderson has some second and third offenders he believes would make good men for the fighting forces.

Before even some of the first offenders could be released, the parole board would have to alter its attitude on some cases, the warden said Other convicts would require sentence commutations.

"If the technicalities were waived, we could furnish 450 to 500 men for the army," Henderson said "And they would make good soldiers."

COWS EAT NEW UREA MIXTURE

Wisconsin Research Develops Synthetic Material of Ammonia, Carbon Dioxide.

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
Wide World Science Editor

MADISON, Wis.—Cows at the University of Wisconsin agricultural department are eating urea, a synthetic material made entirely by machinery, out of ammonia and carbon dioxide.

They are eating, liking and waxing fat on the same kind of urea which goes in enormous amounts into America's war explosives, and into some of the most beautiful plastics for buttons, buckles, pens, lamps, necklaces.

The Wisconsin achievement, climax of five years experiments, is one of the greatest turning points in diet. It is the first time that man or animal has gotten away, on any large scale, from plants as a source of food.

Even the meat eaters have had to rely on meat coming from plant eaters of the earth and sea.

Machine-Made Food

But now there are a lot of humans who have eaten beef from the Wisconsin cows, drunk the milk, and liked the butter and the cheese which was to quite an extent the machine-made urea which these experimental cows were fed. The results have been completely wholesome, showing that the dream of calling on the machines for food may some day come true.

Of immediate importance, the Wisconsin experiment seems to insure farmers of this and other nations a reasonably priced source of cattle feed to temper some of the shortages expected from war.

The synthetic urea forms the bulk of the protein in the Wisconsin cow meals although never all the protein. The idea that urea might do this has been on tap many years and tried in many lands.

Urea once before, changed the scientific course of the world. It was the first organic chemical ever synthesized. This was 114 years ago. Until then science held it was impossible for test tubes to create anything made by living tissues.

Present In Tissues

Urea is a principal excrement of man and all mammals, and to a lesser extent of reptiles and lower animals. It is present in all tissues. It is a necessity of life.

But it is not by any stretch of the imagination a food, even though it is a nitrogenous compound.

Only the cows can eat it, and that, as shown by the Wisconsin experiments, is due to the four stomachs of this ruminant. It was the famous Wisconsin cow with the window in her stomach which made possible the success of the urea feeding experiments.

From her stomach the Wisconsin scientists took frequent samples and so found out what mixtures of urea and other feeds were successful.

After they had learned that cows could take urea, the Wisconsin workers, E. B. Hart, I. W. Rupel and Gus Bohstedt, spent years on the more difficult job of learning whether the meat and milk still were perfect. That is the phase completed and just announced at Madison.

First they tried the qualities of the beef of bulls fed on urea. By all nutrition tests this meat was good. Milk and milk products, too, were good. But would lactation and production of calves be affected?

Took 3 Years

To answer that satisfactory has taken the last three years. A herd of 24 cows, fed on urea, has performed as well as when they ate only the finest standard feeds.

The urea is mixed with hay, silage and grain. There may be other equally good or better mixtures, but to date none has been found. For example, feeding just timothy hay and urea failed. That was a hard disappointment, because it would have been a ridiculously cheap cattle feed.

On the other hand, when the ration contains large amounts of high-quality protein, the urea is wasted.

The economic uses of urea come in whenever protein feeds exceed $20 to $30 a ton and when urea can be bought for $70 a ton. (Much less urea is required than of other protein feeds.) At present, due to war, the current price of urea is $80.

But in times of rising feed costs, and particularly after the war when the synthetic urea plants look for new customers, the cows will benefit and the world may be on its way to a new dietary regimen.

Consumer expenditures for commodities during 1942 is estimated by the department of commerce at 102 billion.

COURT RULING ASKED BY U. S.

Government Seeks To Make AP News Available To All Papers.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Aug 28—The government, crediting The Associated Press as pioneer among news services of the United State and contending that a newspaper without it suffers competitive disadvantages asked federal district court today for an order to force "the AP" to serve any newspaper willing to pay the cost.

The Chicago Sun was mentioned specifically as having been unable to obtain membership in The Associated Press; likewise the Washington Times-Herald.

A civil complaint filed by the government in the southern New York district court dealt with corporate matters solely. It paid high tribute to the operations of The Associated Press and emphasized its reputation for impartiality, accuracy, thoroughness and speed.

The government's complaint, in brief, made these allegations.

1. Those provisions of the AP by-laws which exclude competitors of existing members from membership and the AP news, illegally restrain and monopolize interstate commerce in news and illegally restrain the interstate commerce of newspapers which are prevented from obtaining AP news;

2. The provision of the AP by-laws requiring each of nearly 1,300 members to furnish local news gathered by its own staff exclusively to the AP illegally restrains and monopolizes interstate commerce in news.

Additionally, it was asserted that the acquisition by the AP in 1941 of the stock of Wide World Photos, Inc., a news-picture service formerly owned by the New York Times, was an illegal acquisition of stock of a competing corporation.

Asks Injunction

The petition asked that The Associated Press be permanently enjoined against further enforcement of the by-law provisions referred to and also required to divest itself of the Wide World stock.

Named as defendants were the association, a non-profit cooperative incorporated in New York; the 18 members of the board of directors; the publishers of the newspapers with which the directors are affiliated, and the nearly 1,300 other members in the United States as a group. The AP serves more than 2,000 newspapers throughout the world. Only members in continental United States were named.

The government's petition for an injunction against certain by-laws—amended by the members themselves at their annual meeting last April—contended, among other things:

That news agency is "essential to survival of any newspaper."

That there are three news agencies and "of the news services supplied by those three, that of The Associated Press ranks in the forefront in public reputation and esteem."

That "a newspaper which is barred AP news operates under a competitive disadvantage with AP members."

Two Other Services

The two other news services referred to are the United Press and the International News Service.

"In the mind of the general public," the government said, "the name 'Associated Press' has long been regarded as synonymous with the highest standards of accurate, nonpartisan and comprehensive news-reporting."

Amplifying its contention that the AP stands in the van of news services, the government said:

"One reason for this is that the Associated Press exceeds its competitors in expenditures for collection and transmitting news, in the length of news reports it furnishes, in physical facilities, in size of staff, in number and geographical distribution of news bureaus, in number and geographical distribution of newspapers supplying it with news of their localities and in the unique requirement hereinafter set forth that these newspapers must serve The Associated Press exclusively.

"A second reason is that the character of the organization of The Associated Press—a membership corporation composed of persons representing every shade of economic, political, and religious opinion and every section of the country—is an invaluable guarantee that the promise and claim made by each news-agency—that it presents the news without any political or sectional bias—will in fact be fulfilled."

Contending that freedom of the press would be served by making AP service available to all newspapers willing and able to share the cost of such service, the government said:

"Restraints imposed by denial of AP membership and services are particularly burdensome in that event the newspaper must rely on the services of the UP (United Press) alone or as supplemented by INS (International News Service). Furthermore, it is forced to accept whatever terms are demanded by these agencies.

By-Laws Questioned

More than government's argument revolves about by-law provisions governing membership admissions in cases where a member already occupies the field in which an applicant publishes or proposes to publish. By "field" is meant the time of publication; that is, morning or afternoon.

Until this year, an applicant required the affirmative vote of 80 per cent of the membership to gain admission if a member in the same city and field refused to waive his right of protest.

Early this year the justice department notified The Associated Press board of directors that it regarded the exclusion of applicants, based upon no standard other than the competitive effect upon individual members, to be in violation of the anti-trust laws.

In view of that, the complaint stated, the AP membership "materially amended" the by-laws at its annual meeting in April, 1942. The government contended, however, that the amended rules only eliminated the "right of protest" in form, while achieving "the same result by means even more objectionable."

Marion Soldier Inducted, Then Enlists in Navy

Alva Abrams, 21 of 378 Girard avenue has the unusual distinction of being a member of two branches of Uncle Sam's fighting forces—and whether he keeps his blue navy uniform or dons the army's khaki is a matter that apparently rests with officials of the two services.

His unusual status, brought about by his enlistment in the navy after having been inducted by the army, was revealed here yesterday when he did not report for departure with a group of inductees from Board 2, draft officials revealed. Abrams had been inducted Aug. 13 at Columbus and then returned here on a 14-day furlough.

Yesterday Board 2 officials received word from the naval recruiting headquarters at Toledo that Abrams had signed up for sea duty. A check with his family revealed that he left Wednesday for the naval training center at Great Lakes, Ill., according to draft officials.

It was necessary for the draft officials to report the reason for Abrams absence to the state selective service director at Columbus, who in turn notified army officials at Ft. Hayes. What action may be taken to clear Abrams' double assignment of serving his country was not known here.

Many fruits and vegetables may be saved for winter use by drying.

American Public Willing To Accept a 3 Per Cent Sales Tax, Survey Shows

By GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N. J., Aug. 28 — An increasing number of Americans approve the idea of a national sales tax.

During recent months the public has had a chance to listen to labor leaders and others who have condemned a sales tax as imposing an unfair burden on the poor, and to many business leaders who have favored a sales tax as representing the equitable way of sharing the war's costs.

The public today, as indicated in the most recent public opinion survey, accepts the idea of a small sales tax, but rejects the plans which business leaders have presented for a tax of eight to 10 per cent.

During the months while this debate over the sales tax has been carried on, the American Institute of Public Opinion has kept a close check on public sentiment for and against this tax proposal.

In each survey made the exact question was put to an exactly comparable cross-section.

In May of this year 46 per cent of all voters with opinions on the question favored a three per cent sales tax. Fifty-four per cent were opposed. By July, when another study was made, the percentage approving the sales tax had risen to 52 per cent. Today, the percentage has risen further to 57 per cent in favor of the proposal.

A similar trend has been kept on a national sales tax calling for two per cent. The same trend is apparent here, but, obviously, a higher proportion of the public is willing to pay two per cent than is willing to pay three per cent. The trend for the two per cent sales tax is as follows

	Favor	Oppose
May	54%	46%
July	58	42
TODAY	61	39

Estimates on the annual income from a three per cent sales tax place the figure slightly above two billion, or approximately equal to the deficit in the house of representatives' bill approved and sent to the senate some weeks back.

Not only in the matter of the sales tax, but also in the matter of income taxes, the public has shown itself willing to make greater sacrifices than congress has yet asked it to make

WILDERNESS GIRL

By LETA ZOE ADAMS

CHAPTER FIFTEEN
Declaration

FOR the next few days Sandy was in no condition to worry about anything that transpired in camp. Helen and Gil took turns sitting beside him to watch that he did not break any of the pustules, but he talked to them infrequently.

Tyra, ignoring Helen's tongue lashing, visited the camp every day, usually spending a few minutes making suggestions for Sandy's care, much as a doctor might have done. Helen, at these times, stood to one side saying nothing.

Tyra spent a good deal of time with Gil, but it was not until Sandy began to recover that he learned Tyra was coaching Gil in how to live off the bush. They hunted together, not only for meat but for other foods, so that all manner of delicacies began appearing on the camp menu—yucca roots, wild coffee; the succulent nuts from the coquito palm, mangoes, avocadoes, limes. Above a hardwood smudge which burned night and day hung strips of deer meat, curing, for Tyra said they would need it on the trail.

Still, with all these friendly overtures and preparations, Sandy had no notion of Tyra's future plans. For all he knew, as soon as he was able to travel, Tyra might slip off in the night again.

Sandy discussed this possibility with Gil and Helen. Gil suggested watchful waiting. Helen continued to maintain stoutly that the expedition would be better off without Tyra, but agreed to abide by the decision of the men

"Tyra has helped us some, I suppose," Helen admitted reluctantly. "But I can't trust her."

As soon as Sandy was able to move about freely he decided that he would approach Tyra himself.

On the evening he selected for a trip to her camp there was a moon, theatrically large and yellow, and a whisper of a breeze in the tops of the feathery palms He left camp soon after the evening meal A vague restlessness was upon him, hurrying his steps, stirring his blood. Every night-call of a bird overhead, every movement in the brush, held some special significance. It was as if he had walked through that moon-laved jungle before, upon the same urgent errand

Call By Night

Through the interstices of the bushes he saw the faint glow of Tyra's fire He halted as though held to the spot by invisible hands For Tyra herself was stooping over the fire. Her hair, which Sandy usually saw bound under a scarf to protect her head from insects, cascaded to her shoulders in rippling waves, her tanned bare legs caught the ruddy fire-glow like rubbed copper and her eyes held the mystic serenity of a sibyl.

"Tyra, Tyra!" Sandy's lips just moved over the words. But, as if the girl by the fire had heard, she straightened and swung her head to peer into the shadows.

He showed himself then, for he did not want to frighten her.

"Just your next-door neighbor, come to make a call," he announced.

He thought she stiffened a little as though to brace herself, but he could not be certain of that.

"You make bush life sound quite civilized," she retorted. "Too bad Manuel has tossed out the remains of the tea or I'd offer you refreshments"

"Hospitable of you, Tyra, but I didn't come for refreshments."

Sandy stood on the other side of the little fire. Now that he was here he scarcely knew how to present his errand. In fact, he was not even certain that he wanted to present it. There were more important things to tell Tyra!

They had been accumulating during those long days when he lay on top his sleeping bag and stared up at the hot sky. Seeing Tyra there by the fire had brought it all to a focus.

Sandy was aware that Tyra watched him curiously, and after a brief silence, she said—

"Maybe you came to talk about the trip ahead."

He muttered, "Yes, that's it. I'll be ready to travel in a day or two, you know. The question is: Are we going on alone, or are we going with your party?"

He waited breathlessly for her answer She gave her head a toss so that every brown hair came alive for an instant in the fire-glow.

"There doesn't seem to be any choice," she said

"For you?"

"Yes"

"That means you'd rather not have our company?"

She said carefully. "I wouldn't put it that way."

"How would you put it, then Sandy ask bluntly.

Again he waited while she gazed into the fire, as though pondering her answer.

"I mean it isn't a — personal thing"

"Yet you don't want us. It is because you're afraid we'll hamper you? Hold you back?"

"That wouldn't matter a great deal."

Somehow Sandy spanned the distance between them. He snatched up her hands, held them tightly between his own

"Tyra, let's sweep away all these cobwebs. We've been tangled up in them so long! There's something I've got to tell you. True enough I want to find the Mayan city But, more important, I don't want to lose you again I want to stay near you, wherever you are"

In her hands, he felt the tremor that passed through her body, and his blood exulted But her words, when they came, were disconcertingly cool.

"If you're—making love to me—please don't—bother."

Sandy said rapidly, "Maybe I'm clumsy at it, but making love to you is exactly what I'm doing You came back to the camp because you cared what happened to me, didn't you, Tyra? You can't deny that"

"I'd have done it for anyone In common humanity"

That was so He had been jumping to conclusions, deluding himself Still

"But you didn't have to stay here in common humanity. You could have pulled out any time during these two weeks. But you didn't, and so . . ."

She did not allow him to finish She tugged to free her hands "You'd better go now, Sandy."

"We can't get—to the bottom here. Maybe we—never can"

"Don't be so mysterious, Tyra"

A glance, half fear, half panic, flashed across her face She pulled harder to free her hands.

"I'll guide you to the plateau, if that's what you want! I'll take you there. And now will you let me go?"

Sandy caught his breath and tightened his grip upon her hands. "I see it now You think I came here to talk to you into guiding my party even if I had to bribe you by making love to you Is that it? Is that the kind of heel you think I am?"

She met his gaze defiantly, "And if it is?"

"There's only one answer"

His arms went around her, and suddenly, miraculously, she crumpled against him.

Generous Adolf

HITLER has produced a new trick in his effort to hold the people of occupied countries in line. He has announced that "in appreciation of the attitude of the people of Dieppe" he has ordered release from prison camps of all men whose homes are in or near the city.

The attitude of the people of Dieppe, Hitler should know if his Gestapo was listening to the British broadcasts on the night of the raid, was in strict compliance with requests sent out over the English shortwave radio.

As the commandos reached the French coast the air was flooded with messages asking the citizens of Dieppe and the neighboring sections to stay at home and keep out of sight in order to save themselves from the results of Nazi hate after the landing party had withdrawn.

Hitler's bighearledness has involved the disposition of prisoners on previous occasions. A favorite move is to release prisoners in numbers equal to the Frenchmen who agree to go to Germany to work in war plants. Another item of strategy is to warn the French people from time to time that if they obstruct the Germans reprisals will be meted out to the prisoners. Since nearly every French family has relatives among the captives, it is one of Hitler's most powerful weapons in controlling conquered France.

England is keeping the people of France informed of the difference between a hit and run raid and a real invasion. When the latter comes the presence of formidable help from friends across the narrow channel is certain to have more influence with the French people than the promises of Hitler.

Soldiers Are Citizens

PROSPECTIVE enactment of a law permitting members of the armed forces to vote in elections for national office while serving in the continental United States is recognition of the fact that a man does not cease to be a citizen when he becomes a soldier.

The President is still his president, the senator his senator and the congressman his congressman and he has a free American right to have a voice in their selection.

It was a touchy problem throughout the debate and the voting. It involved the question of "states' rights" which can always put a southern politician in fighting mood but the measure, passed by the senate, is now back in the house for action on amendments.

Soldiers give up many rights and privileges when they don the uniform. The right to vote must not be taken from them. That is one of the rights for which they are fighting.

The Fortresses Return

THE PHRASE "all of the flying fortresses returned to their base" has been repeated so many times in the last few days that these giant American fighting planes of the air have proved their worth and gained a new respect from friend and foe alike.

Until quite recently the English aviation experts did not warm up to the huge, heavily armored American planes and it was not until American flying men entered the action that they were brought into use.

We heard first how they fought off numerically superior forces over the Pacific and they have given a brilliant account of themselves over occupied Europe, proving more than a match for the best that Germany could send against them.

Lacking the speed which some other models possess, they make up for it in armament and gun power, especially their ability to fire from any angle and to blast attacking planes no difference from what direction they may come.

To go into a fight with speed and hitting power is only half of the requirement from a battle plane. The ability to take as well as to give and to return to the home base after the job is finished is almost as important and this is the quality which Uncle Sam's flying fortresses have in measure superior to any other fighting aircraft.

Since our friends as well as our enemies have had a chance to see what the fortresses can do they will gain a respect that justifies the tenacity of our air experts who went ahead building them when others passed them up for lighter and faster but more vulnerable aircraft.

News Behind the News

Hitler Reported Considering Shifting Forces from Russia To Drive on Britain.

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28—Signs are rising over Europe that Hitler may turn away from Russia in September, after greatly weakening Red powers of resistance with his current blows, and shift his air force and much of his strength for a drive on Britain and defense of western Europe against the day of a second front.

He can either do this, (and confront us with a much more formidable array of power there), or try to break through the Caucasus, overrun the near east, and attempt to crush Allied resistance in that part of the world, including Egypt.

A winter change of fronts, however, seems a plausible and logical expectation, in view of two developments, the prospective weakness of Russia, and Hitler's need to defend his German cities from the terrific air bombing they have been getting, and will receive, in increasing winter force.

Indeed, if Russian resistance is sufficiently weakened, he could maintain both fronts at once, because he could then spare the bulk of his air power from the near east attack, where long Allied lines of supplies prevent concentration of a major force.

In this connection, suddenly the other night Goebbel's Berlin radio started blaring the news around the world that we are to open a second front through Dakar and northern Africa.

This was no doubt a feeler to find out what would be done, but it sounded also as if such a step might upset or hinder the plans Hitler is supposed to have for a winter concentration against Britain. In any event, no one here is telling him anything.

Winter Prospects

The winter prospects, of course, hinge on the weakness of Russia, and the situation on that subject is easy to see.

The Reds have had time to erect some earthwork and concrete protection in depth around Stalingrad, but the ground is not well suited to defense. It is level, in general, and nowhere near as formidable a natural barrier to the Nazi advance as was presented at Leningrad and Moscow.

Industries have been moved out of the city, up toward Saratov and Kuibishev, and even deeper into the Urals, but the facts of Russia's desperate transportation, manufacturing and food situation must be faced.

Three fourths of her war-time traffic facilities will go when the Volga is cut, so greatly has she relied on the boats of that great river. Even in peace, half of all her traffic moved on that stream. To add to her transportation difficulties, one-third of her railroads are already gone.

Most of her richest fields are now in Nazi hands, and a food shortage is in prospect this winter. Four-fifths of her normal oil supply will be lost to her when the Germans cut the Caucasus routes of trade, through the Black and Caspian seas. Only one tenth of her oil lies safe behind the Urals.

She can still keep Germany away from most of this oil if she can hold the east-west line of the Caucasus mountains, but the Nazis made a clever early effort to cut through the center of that line.

On their way southeast to Grozny, they slipped a line of troops off into a good road up Mt. Elbrus, highest mountain in Europe, and took it, threatening to break through the mountains and cut off Russian troops fighting west of that point.

Fight for Baku

The main fight for the rich Baku oil prize, however, is expected to come after Grozny, on the narrow (and bad) roads over the foothills, southward from that point to Baku.

If Russian defense can be strongly maintained there, the near east is relatively safe. If the Germans break down Timoshenko's resistance on that front, they can roll right on through the near east, endangering Egypt and all allied resistance in that quarter of the world, cutting completely our southern access to Russia.

All these facts together, at this date, while the battle still rages, mean Russia is weakening, may grow weaker during the winter. It means we must face greater power on any second front, that every passing moment increases our difficulties, that the best time for it has already gone.

Naturally, however, we cannot start it until our military men think we have enough power to win it.

Second Front Forecast

There will be a second front, make no mistake about that. Pay no attention to the nonsense being spread around this country by some of the experts. For instance, one is broadcasting that Dieppe proved a second front was impossible, because dozens of different umbrellas, composed of a thousand planes each, would have to be placed over each invasion point and not that many planes are available.

All we need for invasion is superiority in the air at the points of invasion. If the Germans have 1,000 planes we should have 1,200, but if they have only 100 we need no more than 125.

Invasion is not only possible, but certain, even if it becomes a tougher problem.

"I" TEST

The Meat Problem

By HERMAN ALLEN
Wide World Writer.

WHY is there a meat shortage? What can be done about it? I confabbed with a couple of agriculture department experts about that.

"Well, heck," said one of them, "here's why there's a meat shortage—"

He jotted down a few figures.

"Look," he said. "Last year we produced 19,500,000,000 pounds of meat. Lend-lease and supplies for the armed forces took only 200,000,000 pounds, leaving a civilian supply of 19,300,000,000 pounds. We were operating under a 'free price' system then, without ceilings, so that supply was just equal with the demand.

"Now look at this year's figures. The total supply is bigger than ever—23 billion pounds. Lend-lease and armed forces will take about six billion pounds, leaving 17 billion for civilian consumption.

"Average domestic consumption for the five years 1937 to 1941 was 17,800,000,000, slightly more than the supply for this year. However, men who will be in the armed forces by the end of the year normally would account for about 1,400,000,000 pounds a year in civilian life. On that basis, you would expect the demand to be about 16,400,000,000 pounds this year.

"In spite of that, we figure the demand is going to be 20 billion pounds—three billion more than the supply.

"What we really have is a normal supply but a demand far above normal."

There have been statements in some quarters that one reason for the shortage is that packers have to pay high prices for livestock (there is no ceiling price on the animals themselves) and have to sell at comparatively low wholesale ceiling prices. The reasoning is that this is forcing some packers out of business and that consequently there is less meat on the market.

My two men at the agriculture department snorted:

"Shucks," said one, "in the first place, we have reports of only three or four small packers going out of business. In the second place, there aren't any loose marketable animals running around. The demand is so great that they're going to be snapped up by other packers."

It is true that some packers are feeling the squeeze, and one suggested remedy is a ceiling on livestock.

Right there, said my two experts, is the catch. It would be next to impossible to set a ceiling on beef cattle, for instance, because you have to consider the meat yield of various breeds, ages, weights, etc.

Seasonal Development.

Meat has been especially short the past two or three months, just as it is every summer. Until marketing picks up in the fall, the Agricultural Marketing Administration has done two things to relieve the pinch. First, although the meat going to our fighting Russian allies is regarded as "the most important meat on earth," purchases for lend-lease have been temporarily reduced. Second, prices for meat still being shipped abroad have been set below the ceiling for other AMA purchases. This tends to make meat flow into domestic rather than lend-lease channels.

How to make the best of the shortage? Two plans are being considered. One is to allocate meat to various regions, then to states and perhaps to counties and cities and even individual butcher shops.

The other plan is just old fashioned rationing, like sugar. The WPB Food Requirements Committee, which developed the allocation idea, also has asked OPA to "proceed as rapidly as possible with the formulation of procedures for consumer rationing of meat." OPA, however, insists it has no immediate intention of rationing meat.

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

It was Monday, Aug. 28, 1922.

President Harding returned to the White House after a week-end spent with his "strike cabinet" on the presidential yacht, Mayflower. He found a situation in which industry was showing signs of slowing down from the paralyzing effects of the railway and coal mine strikes and in which there was imminent danger of the shopmen's walkout spreading to other classes of railroad labor. The president issued a brief proclamation summing up the results of his week-end conferences.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Woods arrived in Washington to be guests of President and Mrs. Harding. They made the trip by motor.

The Marion County Teachers Institute opened in the east hall of the Harding High school building with a record attendance of more than 300 teachers and supervisors of the city and rural schools. The program opened with Dr. Jesse Swank, pastor of Epworth M. E. church, leading devotions. The morning speaker was Charles S. Meek, Toledo school superintendent, and in the afternoon the speaker was Vernon M. Riegel, state superintendent of public instruction who was formerly superintendent of the Marion county schools.

Men Past 40

Older Men Handy for Ca-- Duty but It Takes Youth Meet Demands of Real Fight.

By DAMON RUNYON

ALL able-bodied men up to 40 years of will probably be grabbed for the within the next 60 days, except those who can show valid reasons for emption or deferment.

In fact, I judge from the number of eyeing 40, including veterans of W I, who are being taken in, that the age is becoming a secondary con with the military authorities for the ing as long as the subject has no matrim entanglements.

Personally, I do not think the average past 25 is worth a nickel as a combat and it is unlikely that the authorities plate employing any considerable numbe that type for this purpose, but since the step is inevitably the drafting of the the lower age brackets down to 18, it to first remove what might be cause for complaint.

The parents of a kid of 18 or 19 would reasonable grounds for a beef if he was into the service while the landscape rem dotted with foot-loose older fellows n uniform and apparently physically q to serve, it is my guess that most of guys will be kept in this country in th of home defense while the youngsters sent to augment our assault troops abroad

YOU see, there is a considerable diff between the service required of outfits and the duties of troops at re in places where the soldiering is more garrison duty. It is possible, of course, the latter instances the men may sudde called upon for the heaviest kind of duty, but with the assault troops such is not a possibility—it is a certainty.

A man of 40 has reached middle ag in most cases has developed settled ha paunch and not infrequently a few pl ailments that may not militate again carrying on of his normal functions in life, but that will be of no benefit to him soldier. A few men of middle age m hardy enough to stand the grind of service but they are merely the exception prove the rule.

You must have the kids to do the fi in the field. All our wars have been w the youngsters. I deplore the fact tha exacts a toll of our youth as much as an else. I think it a dreadful thing that who ought to be in school or a youn just getting a start in life has to suspe future to go to war, yet there is no othe that victory can be achieved in war.

WASHINGTON — The American Indian is on the warpath again. Seven per cent of his eligible manpower is in uniform to give him, according to the Bureau of Indian Affairs, the largest percentage for any race represented in the U. S. armed forces.

On an average 500 Indians are entering the service each month, answering both the call of country and of tribe. For the red man has his own tomahawk to grind. The Iroqeois Confederacy of the Six Nations has formally declared war on the Axis. So have the Cheyennes, who call the Axis "The Unholy Alliance."

As soon as the selective service act went into effect, Indians reported at the induction centers — many with their own rifles. Already their number approaches the 8,000 who served in World War I, when their valor won them citizenship.

In That Other War

Then their "representation in camp and actual warfare furnished a ratio to population unsurpassed and unequalled by any other race or nation," in the words of Representative O'Connor of Montana. Indians subscribed to $25,000,000 in Liberty Bonds. Otis Leader, a Choctaw, was designated the typical American soldier and his portrait was hung in the French federal building in Paris.

This generation of Indian soldiers (the army gets most of them) is out to do as well or better.

Chee Dodge, last of the Navajo war chiefs, bought $20,000 worth of war bonds. At Willow Springs Camp, Okla., Indian CCC enrollees purchased $295 worth of war stamps from their canteen fund, and distributed the stamps among members.

More High Finance

When Lt. William Schick, white friend of the Jemez Indians of New Mexico, was killed at Pearl Harbor, the tribal dancers appeared in war bond rallies. An 11-year-old Indian boy in Porcupine, S. D., sells back to his friends the marbles he wins from them, and buys war stamps with the proceeds. Alaskan Indians own $110,645 worth of war bonds, biggest purchase from that territory. One Alaskan tribe offered free land for an air base.

The women are doing all right, too. A score of Indian girls are working in Washington war agencies. Laughing Eyes, a 29-year-old Creek, was among the first to storm a recruiting office in New York for enlistment in the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps.

In The WAACS, Too

Mrs. Vilda Tinker Rippel, sister of Gen. Clarence L. Tinker of the Osage tribe who was lost at Midway, was accepted as a candidate for WAAC officer training at Des Moines. Another WAAC candidate, Arline Seneca, has a sister, Vivian, who is an Army nurse at Panama.

Forty Chippewa woman organized a rifle brigade to be ready to pop off parachutists. In North Carolina, Indian women familiar with farming but not farm machinery have learned to operate and repair the machinery as their men go off to war. A Seneca miss, Bernice Blueye, is a machinist in an eastern war plant.

Education and experience of the Indian have advanced since the last war. Even then, he showed an outstanding ability to resist mental strain. It is notable too that few of the many Indians serving in this war have been killed. All his training and instincts serve to make him a good soldier.

"The Major's waiting for this."

MANSFIELD YOUTH TIES IN TRAP SHOOT

Boy, 17, Even with One-Armed Man, at Vandalia.

By The Associated Press

VANDALIA, O., Aug. 28—Two Ohioans, a one armed man from Bellevue and a 17-year-old Mansfield youngster, fired their way today into the lead at the grand American handicap's halfway mark with scores of 98 and 100.

The youth is Earl Goezt, son of a Mansfield hardware dealer. The veteran is Ruben Frederick of Bellevue, who is minus his left hand but uses a "pump" gun.

The two were among the holdovers from yesterday's first round which was held up by darkness. Each fired from 18 yards, but both were shoved back to 20 for today's final 100 targets.

Everett Addy of Springfield, who fired a 97 yesterday for the early lead from 19 yards, also was shoved back to 20 yards today.

Total scores for the two days will determine the champion in the $10,000 classic.

Addy, after being moved back promptly shot himself out of the tournament with an 89, giving him 186 for the route.

With about 100 shooters having completed the 200-target grind, Dennis M. Hall of North Bend, Ore. was out front with 94-95—189 from the 20-yard line.

RAF Ambulance Bears Body of Duke To Grave

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Aug 28—A simple RAF ambulance in drab war paint bore the body of the Duke of Kent today to Windsor—country seat and burial place of Britain's royal family. Crowds in London's busy Euston station stood silent and bareheaded as the coffin of the duke, draped with his personal standard and surmounted by a single wreath of red lilies, was removed from the baggage car of an express train. Aboard the same train were the bodies of three members of the Duke's entourage who died with him Tuesday in a flying boat crash in Scotland—his secretary, Lieut. John Lowther; his equerry, pilot officer the Honorable Michael Strutt, and valet, Leading Aircraftsman Hales.

ISALY

He also leaves two brothers, Samuel D. Isaly of Youngstown, and Henry William Isaly of Pittsburgh, one sister, Mrs. John Marion of Mansfield, and four grandchildren.

Other Business Interests

Mr Isaly's business interests extended into a number of other companies in which he held stock, and he was a director of the Marion County bank and the Home Federal, Savings & Loan association. He was active for many years at Marion Country club, a trustee of First Presbyterian church, and an active supporter of the Community Fund organization and personally interested in several welfare and service agencies. He served on the Red Cross executive board, was active in Y. M. C. A. work, an active supporter of both the Boy Scout and Girl Scout organizations and was a trustee of the Boy Scout Reservation in Marion county.

His recreational activities included golf, hunting and fishing. He and other Marion men regularly made hunting trips and had discussed tentative plans for another such trip in the near future.

Friends may call at the home after 2 p. m. Saturday. Monday at 11 a. m. the body will be taken to First Presbyterian church to lie in state until time for the funeral at 2 p. m. in charge of Rev. Howard Olewiler.

"RED CROSS GIRL"

Selected as the "Red Cross Girl of the Month" for September to epitomize the campaign for an additional 100,000 women to become nurses' aides, Christine Gawne (above) of Washington, D. C, is shown demonstrating her work of mercy. With the army and navy requiring about 3,000 registered nurses a month, it becomes necessary for the country to have a plentiful supply of aides to help the remaining nurses care for the sick and civilian wounded in case of raids.

dead Japs behind most every cocoanut tree," said Colonel Carlson.

"On the battlefield, I picked up a sword and pistol of the Japanese Lieut.-Colonel commandant and turned it over to Commander (John M.) Haines (of Coronado, Calif.) who presented it to Admiral Nimitz (Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, commander-in-chief of the Pacific fleet)."

Lieut. Oscar F. Peatross of Raleigh, N. C, led a group which got caught behind the Japanese lines. In a close exchange, they fought it out with a Jap patrol, and lost three men but cut in from the rear, shot down Jap runners, burned trucks and destroyed a radio station.

Colonel Carlson lauded it as "one of the coolest bits of heroism." It was Lieutenant Peatross' baptism under fire.

A Jap bomber was caught by marines while attempting to flee the battle scene. They shot away two of its engines and from 100 feet up it crashed, killing all aboard.

Major Roosevelt summed up what he thought of the raiding force this way "I don't think there is a finer group of men in the world."

Heavy Battle Ahead, Allied General Says

By The Associated Press

MELBOURNE, Aug 28—Tremendous resources on both sides will be drawn into the battle for the Solomon islands, Gen. Sir Thomas Blamey declared today, asserting that "it was not a single action but a battle which has reached the aggressive stage and must be fought out until one side or the other is defeated."

Expressing optimism over the outcome of the operations at Milne bay on the southeastern tip of New Guinea, the commander in chief of allied land forces in the South Pacific area expressed the belief that the allies would be able to prevent the Japanese who landed there from joining enemy forces in the Kokoda area inland.

By The Associated Press

GENERAL MacARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Aug. 28—The temporary lull in the battle of the Solomon islands turned military attention today to Milne bay, on the southeast tip of New Guinea, where allied land and air forces are fighting hard to keep the Japanese from developing yet another and, potentially, the most dangerous foothold on the island.

Except to report that "the action is developing," General MacArthur's headquarters disclosed no details about the struggle against the enemy landing force which came ashore on the flat, crocodile - infested bay shore Wednesday night.

Income payments to individuals in the state of New York during 1941 totaled $13,554 million, greatly in excess of any other state.

5 HAPPY FISHERMEN

They Return With Record of 64 Catches.

Five Marion fishermen, trying their favorite spot in Canadian waters of Lake Erie near Pelee Island, returned home late yesterday with plenty of fish.

Proudest of the group was F. R. McDaniel, groceryman and former city councilman, of 517 Silver street, who landed a pickerel weighing seven pounds 10 ounces. The fish, measuring 28½ inches, was the largest caught in that vicinity this season, resort operators told McDaniel.

Accompanying McDaniel were Frank Conley of Avondale avenue, Guy Rubins of Davids street, Guy Lattimore of Barn avenue, and Elmer Elliott of Clover avenue. The quintet caught a total of 64 fish, ranging in weight from one to three pounds.

For fishing-minded Marionites they reported their happy fishing grounds to be about 23 miles out of Middle Harbor off the Marblehead light.

POOL OF SINGLE MEN IN DRAFT PROPOSED

Plan Would Call Them Before Married Registrants.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug 28—Selective service officials have recommended a temporary pooling arrangement among local boards in each state to assure that available single men will be drafted before married men.

State directors have been advised to vary their military induction quotas in accord with the number of single men the respective local boards have classified.

An official explained that "in effect, this amounts to statewide pools of unmarried men."

Without such an arrangement, some boards would be obliged to call on married men to fill their quotas before other boards had exhausted their list of single men, it was said.

Most boards, however, were believed to have sufficient numbers of men in the 1-A classification—available for immediate call—to meet prospective demands for the next several weeks.

The instructions went out this month. Officials said they were not informed to what degree the arrangement had been made effective in the individual states.

They added that the pooling arrangement was temporary, pending issuance of a new general directive from national headquarters governing the order of call of draft registrants.

Meatless Day Seen As Possibility for U. S. A.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28—President Roosevelt, visualizing the possibility of the imposition of a meatless day each week on the American people, declared today that this would permit the freezing of 30 to 40 cargo ships now used to transport meat.

He told his press conference he did not know when the people might be asked to give up meat one day a week, inasmuch as the full effect on the difficult problem of transportation still was under study.

But he said that 30 to 40 vessels now bringing meat from New Zealand, Australia and Argentina could be devoted to transportation of tanks, planes and munitions if a meatless day were instituted.

Armies in Desert Poised To Strike at Any Moment

By DEWITT MacKENZIE
Wide World War Analyst

The big, full fight tremendous continues to loom up from the edge of the vast Libyan desert to invite the embattled Allied and Axis forces to combat over a terrain which by day is a blazing furnace but at night is pleasantly cool and, important to note, largely free of the fierce artillery fire that in daylight sweeps its wide-open spaces.

Still the two armies have remained stationary, except for comparatively minor sorties. It's strange that neither side has initiated a major attack, for in that inhospitable zone one of the decisive victories of the war is awaiting a claimant.

Rommel the Hitlerite and Alexander the Briton stand poised like two fighting cocks—hackles erect and steel spurs glinting.

Both Are Cautious

Exceptional caution has been imposed on both by the unusual positions of their armies. They no longer have fluid lines in wide level reaches over which tanks can race at will. They no longer are able to run around each other's flanks, like speedy warships maneuvering at sea.

The mobile desert fighting to which we have become accustomed has for the moment given way to trench warfare. The two armies are "dug in" on a 28-mile front which is confined between the blue waters of the Mediterranean on the north and the Qattara depression on the south.

This means that tanks, which thus far have played so vital a part in the Libyan warfare, aren't likely to be able to assume their accustomed role in any new offensive. Hence one would expect artillery and warplanes to prepare the way for an old-fashioned frontal assault by the infantry. It would be dangerous to risk tanks against gunfire from fixed positions.

Air Power Important

Air strength may represent the balance of power in the coming conflict. At this writing the Anglo-American air forces have superiority, and while Rommel is very close to his source of supply, the status of the fierce battle on the Russian front is likely to determine whether Hitler can spare warplanes for his henchman.

The Nazi marshal has been greatly strengthened with infantry and supplies since the fighting halted. He is reliably reported to have received 35,000 troops during July and has been getting about 500 a day by air from Crete. Thus, apart from air power, he probably is pretty well set for action.

The British, too, have received substantial help. It's said further American air reinforcements have arrived and this would mean much for Alexandria, since our men have been doing magnificent work against Rommel. Whether Uncle Sam also has infantry in Egypt isn't apparent.

In any event, it would seem that both sides are again able to give battle, and the break is likely to come at any moment.

MORE THAN 700 ATTEND SCHOOL BAND FESTIVAL

Pleasant Musicians Make Debut In New Uniforms.

A crowd of between 700 and 800 persons attended the first appearance of the Pleasant High school band in uniform last night at the school. The band, costumed in their new uniforms of black trousers, red coats and red caps, played at intervals throughout the evening on the terrace and marched on the playground, led by the drum majorettes, dressed in white skirts, red jackets, white boots and tall white hats. Milton Baker, music supervisor, directed the band.

The festival and dancing staged by the Band Parents club to raise funds for the uniforms, was pronounced a financial success by the committee in charge.

NEW OFL SECRETARY DRIVES FOR UNITY

Clevelander Wins Election After Donnelly Withdraws.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O, Aug 28—Phil Hannah, newly-elected secretary-treasurer of the Ohio State Federation of Labor, set out today to "consolidate the OFL's strength."

Hannah, 38-year-old chief of the Cleveland gasoline station operators and garage employes union, was elected unanimously at the federation convention yesterday after elderly Thomas J Donnelly of Columbus, who held the post for 29 years, withdrew from the contest.

Hannah, who campaigned for younger OFL leadership, immediately called for a "united federation." He announced that he favored joint meetings of the OFL and Ohio State Building and Construction Trades Council executive boards to "consolidate our strength on legislative and other matters." He said this would be the first step of a "strengthening" program.

White-haired Donnelly, in his 70's, dropped out after the Hannah group won five contested vice presidencies, taking one by a decisive vote.

The Hannah group showed its strength with the election of William Finegan of Cleveland over Stanley Ogg of Hamilton, incumbent first vice president. The vote was 627 to 390.

Donnelly told delegates he was not withdrawing to avoid a fight but that since Hannah candidates had won other offices "my election would not bring harmony in the coming years."

The delegates voted Donnelly a pension, the amount to be stated in a resolution. His salary as secretary-treasurer was $5,000 a year.

President Michael J Lyden of Youngstown, reelected to a third three-year term without opposition, heads the list of officers to be installed at the end of today's business session.

After the Hannah faction demonstrated its strength in early balloting, two Donnelly-backed candidates for vice president's withdrew and the names of two other previously-announced candidates were not entered in the voting.

James H Grafton of East Liverpool previously was announced as a Donnelly candidate for fifth vice president, but his name was not submitted.

NEW LIQUOR PERMITS FROZEN BY BOARD

Number To Be Held at Present Total of 17,000.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O, Aug. 28—Ohio's collective thirst for alcoholic beverages must be slaked until war's end by the state's present crop of 17,000 retail outlets.

The state liquor board, as a wartime emergency measure, yesterday "froze" the issuance of new liquor, beer and wine permits.

"The liquor board felt that in view of the war 17,000 retail liquor outlets are enough," said Board Chairman Harry E. Hawley. "Some of them have been causing us a lot of trouble, so we thought it best that no additional ones be issued."

Permit renewals will not be affected.

However, Liquor Director Jacob B. Taylor said the ruling, effective Sept. 5, will tend to reduce the number of holders since some licenses will be revoked and others not renewed. Permits to replace those not renewed will be authorized only for good cause, he said.

Applications already on file when the order was issued might be granted if the total number of permits in the applicant's political subdivision still would be within the quota fixed by law.

Gov. Bricker disclosed that the board conferred with him some time ago concerning plans to "freeze" the permits.

California Candidates Win—but Both Lose

FLEXIBLE CONTROL OF PRICES, WAGES

President Expresses View on Inflation Regulation.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug 28—President Roosevelt said today that his program to combat inflation contemplated a flexible rather than a rigid stabilization of farm prices and wages. The Chief Executive also declared, in a general press conference discussion of the inflation problem, that he thought farm prices and wages should be kept within a fixed ratio to living costs.

He said he was in accord with Price Administrator Leon Henderson on the stabilization issue.

Replying to questions, the President said he had not yet received a report from the justice department on the extent of his war powers and the degree to which they might be employed to check an upturn in living costs.

He declined to say exactly what questions had been posed to the department for an opinion.

Mr. Roosevelt, who talked over the anti-inflation plans earlier in the week with Philip Murray, president of the CIO, and William Green, president of the AFL, said he thought the two union leaders were in accord with him on the general objectives. They will see him again next Thursday.

The President was definite on the proposition that no freeze order was in sight and that arrangements should be made for both farm prices and wages to be adjusted to living costs.

RAF FIGHTS SUBS IN WEST ATLANTIC

British Planes Already Engage Enemy.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28—The navy announced today that British planes and fliers have joined the anti-submarine campaign in the western Atlantic.

The official statement said:

"Aircraft of the royal air force coastal command are cooperating with the United States naval and army aircraft in anti-submarine operations in the western Atlantic and have already engaged the enemy."

The reference to "aircraft" was interpreted by navy spokesmen to mean both planes and personnel had been dispatched from the British isles or the United States to aid intensification of the war on the U-boats—a war which naval officials say has been increasing successfully in the last two months.

Allied losses are as yet undetermined.

The navy announced yesterday that the 1,600-ton U. S. destroyer Ingraham was sunk in a collision in an Atlantic fog. The vessel was launched Feb. 15, 1941, and had a normal complement of 175. Whether any had been rescued was not stated.

Manufacturers' shipments will be approximately 120 billion dollars in value for 1942, according to the department of commerce.

Retail Sales Decline Second Month in Ohio

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, Aug. 28 — For the second consecutive month, Ohio independent retailers experienced a six per cent decline in dollar sales volume in July, compared with the same month last year, the Ohio State university bureau of business research reported today.

The July loss cut the net dollar volume gain to three per cent in the first seven months this year, against the comparative 1941 period.

Of Ohio's larger cities, Dayton was the only one to show a gain for the month in dollar sales. It had an eight per cent increase over July, 1941. Cities from 25,000 to 50,000 population showed sales declines averaging 15 per cent. Cities from 50,000 to 100,000 had declines averaging 16 per cent. Smaller cities fared better.

Newsman and Fiction Writer Ride in Gliders at Ohio Training Base

By PAUL B. MASON
Associated Press Writer

A GLIDER BASE SOMEWHERE IN OHIO, Aug. 28 — Ever go any glider-flying?

No?

Come along, to one of the country's principal centers of research into motorless flight.

Or ask Paul Gallico, former New York newspaperman who, looking for a little "atmosphere" for a work of fiction, found it, in part, during a 30-minute flight between two cities as many miles apart.

Anyway, Gallico and I flew, each with a pilot, in a two-glider "train" towed by one of the army's slowest planes. (The plane, incidentally, was flown by one of the world's best known race-pilots, Lieut. "Mike" Murphy, for 12 years a contender in many of the country's outstanding air-race events).

Gulping down the last of a sandwich, Gallico shoe-horned his six-foot-two, 210 pound frame into the rear seat of one glider as I adjusted the safety belt and gave a final once-over to my parachute.

Handlers at the wing-tips of each ship waggled the wings in signal to Murphy in the plane ahead. I glanced at Gallico in the ship to my right, with its somewhat longer tow-rope. One hand grasped the other—in a boxer's signal of greeting . . the rope tightened as Murphy roared down the field.

Up Quickly

Scarcely 150 feet and we were air-borne . . . Murphy still on the ground . . . our nose went down . . .

"Got to keep it as low as possible . . . . as even as possible with the tow-plane," explained our pilot . . .

Murphy lifted sharply . . . so did we . . . off to the right, Gallico touched curved forefinger to thumb—an airman's sign the world over that things were 'O. K.'

Towing two gliders side by side is a ticklish job. The one on right, for instance, must continually "yaw" or be turned in the same direction and in the same manner, the portside ship must angle to the left to avoid air turbulence set up by the tow-plane, and as well, a natural tendency of the ropes to twist.

Twenty minutes out and the sunshine of a bright afternoon began to fade before the onset of dark clouds ahead.

"Rain . . maybe some hail," mused the pilot, "we'll probably get it before we land."

But not yet . . . and to break the monotony of soundless flight, where the only noise is the whistle of wind around the wings and through a cowling ventilator, first our glider flew at the right, then the left of the other. This was accomplished easily. Gallico's glider, with its longer tow-rope merely dipping slightly, then coming under and up, to the other side.

(Gliders, incidentally, can not be towed one behind the other on a single rope with any degree of success. Too unwieldly, with a tendency to "whip," say pilots).

Rain Is Downpour

The rain came . . from a single wind-spreading cloud the color of dark slate. First a few drops, then a downpour generously mixed with hail.

"Let's get out of this" suggested our pilot. He snapped loose the tow-line, then nosed down sharply . . .

The needle on our airspeed indicator moved rapidly across the dial . . . as the hands of our sensitive altimeter. Then, to an accompanying feeling that we were being pressed more tightly against the seat, our descent halted—with our nose still down!

We had encountered a strong thermal which sought to bear us aloft . . .

"Enough of that," groaned our friend at the controls, "now watch us"

He set wing-spoilers into operation . . . The "bottom" seemed to drop out of things for the moment . . . the wind's whistle increased in pitch and the altimeter needle resumed its downward sweep as we scuttled fieldward . . .

As suddenly as the storm had enveloped us we broke into half-hearted sunlight . . . circled the airport once and eased to the turf and a crunching halt as the skies dug in . . .

We weren't out of the ship before the storm again caught up with us . . .

Gallico's glider touched the earth. He corkscrewed from the cockpit . . .

"That," said he, 'was some trip. Let's go it again some time!"

Army Opens Enlistment Ranks To Men 45 to 50

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28—Secretary of War Stimson disclosed today that the army has decided to accept enlistments of men 45 to 50 years of age who have particular skills or aptitudes for army service.

They will be assigned to service command or other army or war department units where they can release younger enlisted men for general military service. Previously the top age limit for enlistments was 45.

Asked at his press conference whether this indicated that the army was finding a shortage of manpower, Simson replied, "It indicates that we are trying to raise a big army, and we are going about it prudently so as not to waste combatant manpower."

World Series Berths Begin To Look Secure for Yankees-Dodgers

Brooks Snap Out of Lethargy To Quell Cards; Tribe Halts Bosox.

By JUDSON BAILEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

The World Series is beginning to look safe again for the Brooklyn Dodgers and New York Yankees.

What little excitement has been breathed into two major league pennant races in recent days apparently was expelled yesterday as the Brooklyn Dodgers bounced out of their lethargy and quelled the St. Louis Cardinals 4-1, and the onrush of the Boston Red Sox was checked by the Cleveland Indians 4 to 2.

The Dodgers' victory yesterday—their first in four starts against the Cards—sent the Brooks into the last month of the season with a 5½-game lead.

The Cardinals pitched Max Lanier last night, two days after he had held Brooklyn to four hits Monday night. The stocky southpaw wasn't up to the job, however, and was shelled for five successive singles and three runs in the fourth. Then another lefthander, Ernie White, came in and was pelted for an additional single and Brooklyn's final run.

The veteran Curt Davis, once a Cardinal, hurled the Dodger revival. He held the Red Birds to eight scattered hits and also knocked in two of Brooklyn's runs with a single.

The Red Sox's string of nine consecutive victories not only was broken in the only American league game, but Cecil (Tex) Hughson's skein of 11 straight pitching triumphs was snapped as Jim Bagby of the Indians hurled a five-hitter.

Hank Gornicki provided a one-man show at Pittsburgh by pitching two-hit ball and hitting a two-run homer to lead the Pittsburg Pirates to a 5-0 victory over the Boston Braves. Elbie Fletcher also homered.

Reds Rebuffed In Bid for Third Place

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI, Aug. 28—Rebuffed in their challenge of the New York Giants' hold on third place, the Cincinnati Reds are only a game and a half ahead of fifth place Pittsburgh today as they entertain the Boston Braves in the first of two games.

The Giants' 2-0 victory here in 11 innings yesterday gave them a six-game lead over the Reds. Ray Starr was tumbled to his 12th defeat by five Giant singles in the 11th.

It was Starr's fifth straight failure to notch his 14th victory and one of the toughest losses in his 16-year hurling career, for he'd promised his 11-year-old son, Joe, to win. Joe was taken to Christ hospital this week with infantile paralysis.

Until the 11th Starr gave only five hits and got one of the Reds' six singles off Rookie Harry Feldman. But in the 11th the Giants broke loose.

Al Javery for Boston and Bucky Walters, trying an eighth time for his 13th victory, are today's probable pitchers.

NEW YORK, Aug. 28—Bert Bell and Art Rooney of the Pittsburgh Steelers headed for tonight's All Star game in Chicago with the idea of signing Bill Dudley and Andy Tomasic, but Dudley is more likely to go back to Virginia as freshman coach.. Charlie Gilham, who came all the way from Juneau to the Grand National Trapshoot, says there will be very little big game hunting in Alaska this year.. What about those Jap destroyers?

One-Minute Sports Page—Latest story hereabouts is that Leo Durocher may return to the active list so as to be eligible for World Series play in case he's needed...George McAfee, on furlough from the Jacksonville naval station, got a free trip to Chicago to sit on the Bears' bench tonight...And you can bet George Halas, who is paying the bills, would like to send him against the All-Stars ...Toledo's golf tournament for the 37th Division canteen fund drew 431 entries and well over $1,500. Other Ohio cities are planning similar events.

Last Laugh—When Comedians Ole Olson and Chic Johnson invited the fight mob to a party for their scrapper, Cleo Shans, the other day one of their gags was to serve the meal without any cutlery...It fell very flat when several beachcombers, eating as usual, didn't notice the difference until the knives and forks arrived with the coffee.

Grand Circuit Horses Here for Fair Program

Harry Short of Columbus . . . will bring Grand Circuit string.

Three-Day Program Best in 25 Years, Is Prediction of Marion Speed Officials.

Cancellation of the Ohio and other midwestern state and county fairs and an open week in the Grand Circuit schedule will combine to make the three-day Marion county fair racing program next week bigger than ever before.

Fair officials recently predicted that the program on tap this year is the best in the last 25 years.

One of the chief reasons the races will be better than in recent years is that race purses have been boosted to $5,900—$1,500 more than was awarded a year ago.

Since the Marion county fair will come this year on dates previously assigned for the Ohio state fair, cancelled as a wartime measure, many of the big midwestern stables will bring their leading trotters and pacers here.

Frank M. Foster, speed secretary, also said an open date in the Grand Circuit card would find many of the nation's top mounts here. Harry Short of Columbus, one of the leading Grand Circuit drivers, will bring a stable of eight head here from off the Grand Circuit. Curly Smart of Delaware, leading driver in the Joe Neville stable, will also come here direct from the Grand Circuit, which now is completing a successful stand at Milwaukee.

Lee Smith of Charlotteville, N. C., and Tom Berry of Lexington, Ky., both Grand Circuit campaigners, will also bring stables. Smith's leading contender will be Pay Up, a heat winner in the $40,000 Hambletonian, proving race for three-year-old trotters.

Harvey Hartman of Quakertown, Pa., one of the judges at the spring Little Grand Circuit harness meet here, will be starting judge for the fair card.

Racing sessions will be held each afternoon, starting at 1:30, from Wednesday through Friday.

Wednesday's opening racing card will include the 2:24 and two-year-old trots and the two-year-old pace. All three races are stake events.

Thursday's four event card will include the $1,000 Chamber of Commerce 2:15 pacing derby, The Ohio, a $1,000 three-year-old pacing stake, the Weller's Cafe $600 stake for 2.23 pacers, and a 2:21 trot overnight race.

Friday's card includes a three-year-old stage pace, a 2.15 trotting event and a 2.17 pacing event.

LOS ANGELES AWAITS REDSKIN-ARMY GAME

Pro Owner Expects Baugh To Have Best Season.

By The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES—Owner George Preston Marshall of the Washington Redskins thinks Sunday's football game here between his boys and Maj. Wallace Wade's army all-stars is a toss-up, or would be but for a Texas boy in his backfield, a chap named Sammy Baugh.

"Baugh is positively the greatest who ever played," Marshall said in the course of his observations about the contest. "He might be the difference between victory and defeat. I think we're in for a really tough fight."

Wade, although pleased with the physical condition of his men, was inclined to agree that Baugh would be hard to stop, "but for that matter they have a lot of fellows who are going to be hard to stop. They have the power and they have the polish."

Marshall says his 1942 team is the best he ever had and he expects Baugh, one time Texas Christian ace, to have his best season.

"Sammy is the most dangerous man in football," the Washington laundry owner went on. "He's hard to defend against and the entire country can thank him for making football the wide open game it is today."

Bob Chambers, Duke track coach who is assisting Wade with the army stars, had this to say: "Regular hours, balanced diet, supervised hard work, strict military discipline, all have combined to put our men far ahead of what might be expected in condition from an assemblage of football stars gathered from all parts of the country."

INDIANS EDGE BOSOX, START YANK SERIES

Bagby Pitches Five Hitter To Help Tribe Win, 4 to 2.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Aug. 28—Managing to salvage one out of four contests at Boston after some drastic changes in the lineup, the third-place Cleveland Indians came here today to open a two-game series with the tough Yankees.

Its spirit bolstered by yesterday's 4 to 2 triumph which ended the Red Sox' string of consecutive victories at nine, the Tribe picked Chubby Dean to oppose Red Ruffing in the New York opener.

Jim Bagby outpitched Tex Hughson, the league's leading hurler, yielding only five hits to Tex's seven for the Tribe yesterday. It was Bagby's 15th victory and snapped Hughson's number of straight triumphs at 11.

It was the first in their last 19 starts in which the Indians scored more than three runs.

A two-run rally in the ninth broke the three-run limit that has dogged the Tribe. Hughson hit Ken Keltner, Indians' lead-off man. Jeff Heath singled, sending Keltner to third and Les Fleming walked to fill the bases.

Pinch hitting for Grimes, Dean flied out and Weatherly singled to score Keltner. Heath scored from third on Bagby's long drive.

FITZGERALD, Ga.—The 30-member Fitzgerald High school football squad has abandoned regular practice to pick cotton and stack peanuts as an aid to short-handed farmers in this south Georgia section. They'll get together at night for chalk talks and skull practice.

"The youngsters felt harvesting crops was more important than winning football games during the emergency," said school superintendent Fred Ayers.

Madsen Defeats Kalimkoff In Main Go of Armory Mat Show

Bloomfield Wins Semi-Final Over Zimovich by Disqualification; Olsen Trims Venable.

Denmark's husky Axel Madsen trimmed his main event foe, [illegible] Kalimkoff of Russia, by copping two of three falls in their head scrap on last night's wrestling bill at the Armory.

The New Yorker, Jack Bloomfield, tamed Wild Bill Zimovich in straight falls of the scheduled 60-minute semi-final and Sa[illegible] Olsen, the Swedish star, top[illegible] Billy Venable of Dallas, Texas in their 30-minute prelim mee[illegible]

Bears Favored To Top All-Stars in Gridiron Classic

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Aug. 28—One of the finest teams of college all-stars in nine years is figured by football wisemen to be about three touchdowns shy of matching the Chicago Bears tonight in Soldier field.

George Halas ran his National professional champions through final practices last night under the lights of Soldier field, where a record crowd of 101,200 persons will flock tonight. The customers will pay approximately $300,000 of which at least $160,000 will go to army and navy relief funds.

Both teams are in peak form and confident of victory. A triumph for the all-stars would break a three-year monopoly held by the champions of the National professional football league and would be the third win for the collegians in the nine years of the series. Two games ended in ties.

Bob Zuppke, noted for springing upsets, has coached the collegians into a highly fighting mood during the last month, filling them with ultra-fancy, fan-pleasing plays along the way.

Marion's Annual Softball Classic To Begin Sept. 8 at Lincoln Park Diamond

Marion's "little world series" of softball will be staged at Lincoln park beginning Sept. 8, softball commissioners decided last night at a conference on plans for the playoff. Start of the series has been delayed until after the Marion county fair, Sept. 1-4.

Greenwood, representing the Sunday school league, Coca Cola of the Commercial circuit, and S. W. O. C No. 1949 of the Industrial loop are the three qualifying teams set to engage in the double - elimination tournament to decide the city championship.

Drawings for first round games will be made at a meeting of the three team managers next Monday night at the Y. M. C. A. Charles Turner, secretary of the commission, will supervise the drawings.

The team managers also will select four umpires and one alternate arbiter to handle the series contests. The five umps will be chosen from a list of 10 arbiters, who have regularly handled league games during the season.

All contests will be played at Lincoln park, with the starting time set for 6:30 p. m. A general admission charge of 10 cents will be assessed spectators, while any servicemen in uniform will be admitted free, officials announced.

Under the double-elimination tourney plan each team must lose two games before being eliminated from the competition. When team managers meet next Monday they will draw for tourney positions. Teams 1 and 2 will play in the Sept. 8 opener with Team 3 automatically drawing a bye.

The winner of the first contest will play Team 3 in the second round Sept. 10. The winner of the second game and the loser of the first will meet Sept. 15 and the series will be continued Sept. 17 depending upon the outcome of earlier contests.

NATION'S TOP TITLE AT STAKE TODAY IN VANDALIA CLAY MEET

Novices Head Parade at Half-way Mark of Grand American Competition.

By The Associated Press

VANDALIA, O., Aug. 28—They will decide the $10,000 Grand American handicap today — and indications were that an unknown, as in the past 12 years, would cop the clay target game's biggest prize.

Although 185 of the big field of 935 shooting stars failed to get a crack at the targets yesterday, due to a late start, the performances of the others hinted that the experts were no better off than before a schedule change was made in their favor.

The route was changed this year from 100 to 200 targets. The Amateur Trapshooting association held that the increase might help the experts who are placed far back of the traps, giving them a chance against novices nearer the traps.

However, two practically unheard-of stars headed the parade today as the field hit the last lap. Out front were Everett Aldy, 48, a sheet metal worker from Springfield, O., and 60-year-old A. H. Ammann, a duck hunter and recoil pad manufacturer from Peotone, Ill.

The leaders, who may stay out front, scored 97 of 100, Aldy from 19 yards and Ammann from 22. Back of them were nine marksmen with scores of 96, and 14 with 95's—all of whom had a chance to crash the king row today.

Those scoring 96 included: James W. Light, Greenville, O.; Jerry Tanner, Kings Mills, O., and Paul G. Butterbaugh, Lancaster, O.

The 95'ers included: Earl Decker, Centerville, O.; A. W. Lamb, New Lexington, O.; Harold Smith, New Carlisle, O., and Fred Binzle, Bellevue, O.

NEW COACH ISSUES FIRST GRIDDER CALL

Marion Harding's new football coach, ... today issued the first call for prospective gridders. Seniors, juniors and sophomores who will vie for berths on the varsity squad are asked to report Monday at 2 p. m. at Harding stadium. Uniforms will be issued at that time. The first workout will be held Sept. 1.

COLUMBUS REGAINS FIRST PLACE IN A. A.

Birds Beat Indianapolis, Lead by Scant Margin.

By The Associated Press

The Columbus Red Birds held a scant lead of three percentage points in the red hot American association pennant chase today, and overnight became the favorite among five teams battling down the stretch for the league bunting.

The Red Birds streaked into first place last night with a 10-inning, 4 to 1 victory over Indianapolis in the latter city. And, although they were less than half a game in front of the Milwaukee Brewers today, they were placed in the favorite role because 10 of their remaining 15 games will be played at home.

The Birds open their home stay tonight against the Louisville Colonels, who are in fourth place, three and a half games off the pace. Louisville edged Toledo, 4 to 3, last night.

St. Paul assumed the giant-killer role for the second straight night by walloping Milwaukee 15 to 2.

Kansas City's Blues, only .005 percentage points back of Milwaukee and .008 behind the Red Birds, bounced back into the pennant fight with a 7 to 0 triumph over Minneapolis.

Mathematically, every club in the league but last place St. Paul still has a chance to capture the pennant taken last year by Columbus, which went on to win the little world series.

USO-RED CROSS TO SHARE SERIES FUNDS

Organizations' Part May Reach $679,000.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Aug. 28 — Baseball's offer to share $357,544 to $679,006 of its World Series kitty was extended today to two organizations — the USO and the Red Cross—and needed only their formal acceptance and subsequent approval by government authorities to go into effect this fall.

K. M. Landis, commissioner of baseball, said that to his knowledge the World Series never before has been conducted as a benefit.

After conferring yesterday with Presidents Will Harridge of the American league and Ford Frick of the National league, Landis revealed the plan.

Landis drew up 1942 series estimates based on last fall's classic between the New York Yankees and Brooklyn Dodgers, which teams appear headed for an encore meeting this year, and came up with these statistics:

The $100,000 for radio rights, previously shared by players and "baseball" would be turned over to the USO and Red Cross.

The $160,731 gate receipts from each of the first two games would go into the players' pool and $78,748 to baseball.

The $262,800 receipts from games three and four in the larger Yankee stadium, approximately $128,722 would go each day into the USO-Red Cross pool and $134,028 into the players' kitty, "baseball" getting nothing.

If the series ended in four contests, the two organizations would net $357,544, the players would divide $432,000 and baseball then would get a mere $157,496.

If the series should end in five games, all receipts from the fifth contest—at Yankee stadium and amounting again to $262,800 — would go to baseball, boosting its total to $420,296.

Receipts of games six and seven, in the National league park, would go entirely to the service groups and the final reckoning might be: USO - Red Cross $679,006; players' share $432,000, baseball's share $420,296.

Hawks-Jewelers Paired for Exhibition Battle

Marion softball fans will be treated to a diamond burlesque tonight when members of the Marion Hawks and Lords Jewelry teams perform in a donkey exhibition game at Lincoln park.

The Hawks, switching from their regular forte of baseball, will tackle the Jewelers in five regulation innings before both teams mount the donkeys for another five frames.

Line-ups are expected to be: Lords—Kunkle, Reed, Everly, Gibson, Dillinger, Reichardt, Holliday, Hodges Somerlot and Weiss or Millisor; Hawks—D. Roseberry, F. Walters, Paulus, Anderson, Cook, M. Roseberry, Darnell, J. Roseberry, Creasap and W. Walters.

Fish and Game Group Sets First Meeting

The Marion County Fish & Game Protective association will hold its first meeting of the fall and winter season Sept. 1 at the Eagles' building, President John L. Jolley announced today. Monthly meetings will be held throughout the winter and plans for the season will be mapped at the first session, President Jolley reported.

PRICES PIERCE MEAT CEILINGS

Confusion Results in Some "Black Selling" Trade Sources Indicate.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Aug. 28—The confusion over wholesale meat prices, because of price ceilings governing innumerable grades, has resulted in frequent penetration of ceiling levels and in effect "black selling," trade sources said today.

Sources in the department of agriculture, the meat packing industry and the retail buying field, none of whom would permit use of their names, agreed price ceilings are being exceeded in a variety of ways, either intentionally or unintentionally.

Observers said that, for one thing, ceilings are based on the price schedules of each packer and, as a result, one packer may be able to charge a higher price for a specific type of meat than a neighboring packer.

This situation and other difficulties involved in applying price ceilings to the many classes of meat have led, they said, to daily penetration of the ceilings more or less generally throughout the country.

"Black selling," a term derived from European "black markets," has been encouraged, observers asserted, by freezing meat prices while no ceilings are placed on livestock.

One of the easiest ways of getting around price ceilings is to grade meat to a higher quality than normal, these sources pointed out. Ceilings are placed on different grades of meat. By calling "good" meat "choice," it could be sold under the ceiling for choice meat rather than good, which is lower.

Trade circles said another way was the creation of new meat classifications. There are standard classes of meat upon which ceilings have been placed. But some meat formerly sold in these classifications is offered under new titles, and there are no ceilings for these new classes because they never previously existed.

A third way is to sell price-controlled meat only if meat not under ceilings is also purchased. A few products, upon which it is difficult to determine maximums because of various ingredients in their composition, are not controlled. The buyer takes the price controlled meat and then buys the uncontrolled meat at an excessive cost.

Trade sources said they felt that the office of price administration might investigate and take action, particularly if the ceiling penetrations become flagrant.

WHEAT PRICES UP 2 CENTS A BUSHEL

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Aug. 28—Wheat prices rose more than 2 cents a bushel today in one of the sharpest advances in weeks as grain market activity revived following the President's comments on his anti-inflation program.

Traders said short covering and some buying of mills as well as professional trade purchases accounted for the bulk of support.

Brokers interpreted the President's reports that his program contemplated a flexible rather than rigid stabilization of farm prices and wages as indicating new controls may be less drastic than many dealers had expected. A sharp upturn in cotton prices of more than $4 a bale and war reports from Russia added to buying enthusiasm.

By The Associated Press

YOUR HEALTH

Warts

It may seem to you that your doctor is stretching a point when you say to him, "What shall I do for warts?" and he answers, "What do you mean, warts?" but as a matter of fact it simply shows he is a learned gentleman for there are many different kinds of warts.

The scientific name for warts is "verrucae." What you usually mean when you say wart is verruca vulgaris, or the common wart. It is most common on the hands, but is seen at times in other places such as on the scalp and mucous membranes. It is the hard, dome-shaped, painless growth from the skin not associated with any inflammation around it.

The flat wart of childhood (verruca plana juvenilis) is rarely seen on adults, but is common in children on the face and backs of the hands. They come in all sizes from that of a pinhead up, are flat and soft and are sometimes seen to be a little inflamed.

The plantar wart is a very annoying variety because it occurs on the bottom of the foot, usually under the heel or big toe and hurts to beat the band. They are probably very much the same as verruca vulgaris, but standing on them mashes them down, so instead of sticking out from the surface of the skin they lie beneath it and become covered with a heavy callus. Any kind of a tender callus on the sole of the foot should suggest that a plantar wart is underneath it and when the callus is trimmed away, the wart will be revealed in its nest.

Verruca acriminata are on the moister parts of the skin. The seborrhoeic or senile wart occurs in elderly people on the face, head or trunk.

Probably all warts are due to infection with a filterable virus. The difference in form is not due to different viruses, but different soils. On the soft, moist skin of children it causes the flat wart, and on the dry skin of adults, the vulgar, or the plantar wart. They have a certain degree of contagiousness, especially to different parts of the same person's skin, so that crops of them are a common experience.

The treatment of warts is not by any means always simple nor is it always advisable to undertake it at home by yourself. Of course, the best treatment of all for warts is X-ray exposure. This destroys all kinds of warts.

Plantar warts should be treated by a chiropodist as they are both inaccessible to the owner and very resistant to any form of treatment.

Pitfalls of Love

By ADELE GARRISON

"OF COURSE I had to get that mirror back into my handbag before he got to the table," Mary went on. "Even if I had only been adjusting my lipstick, I didn't want Steve to spot it."

"You're sure he suspected nothing?" my father asked.

"Positive," she replied. "But from that minute on I think I went quietly crazy.

"The only thing I could do was to aid and abet Steve's ever-present desire to lap up all the highballs he could get.

"And he was tickled pink tonight when I let him order plenty of drinks for me. He never noticed that I poured most of 'em into a potted plant on the ledge close by my hand."

"Did he leave the table again?" my father asked.

"Not once," she answered. "I turned on as much charm as I could, and tried to keep him entertained. Then he got the bright idea of bringing up here a bottle of ... wine—you can imagine the effect after those countless highballs?—and I staged a reluctant but fascinated acquiescence.

"I've seen him at parties enough to know he's nearly out already. He can't stand liquor like some of his pals, and I warn you, Auntie Madge, he's apt to fall asleep within five minutes after he gets here. But I didn't know what else to do."

"You did exactly the right thing," my father told her.

"And now," she demanded, distaste and excitement queerly mingled in her voice, "where do we go from here?"

"Your Aunt Margaret and I will go into the adjoining apartment, leaving the door ajar," my father said. "If you cannot manage him, I have a man there who can. But if you can keep him talking until he falls asleep, so I can come in and take off his shoes, that will be best of all. If we find the paper, you have done your country a magnificent service. And you will have to go out with Redfield alone, or with Olina, only a few times more, if at all."

"Allah be praised!" Mary intoned. Then, hearing a clumsy knocking at the door, my father and I hurried to the other apartment. As Mary opened the door we heard Redfield's drunken voice hiccupping: "Look what I've brought you, my pretty wench! A bottle of wine fit for a queen!"

Noel Intervenes

But the next second a rush of feet followed him, the door slammed and Noel's hoarse voice said: "Take that, you swine!"

"That," was evidently a blow, for as my father and I hurried back we heard a crash, then found Redfield on the floor unconscious and Dicky restraining Noel by main force from hitting him again.

Swiftly my father knelt beside the actor, felt his pulse, listened to his breathing and opened an eyelid, then pronounced judgment.

"He'll be all right in a few minutes," he said.

Then he unlaced the actor's shoes and from one drew the paper he had described to Mary.

"Good work, Mary!" he said. "This is the vital paper that was missing. When Noel is calmer, Richard, I'll send Adams to take Redfield into the other apartment, where we can attend to him."

It took several minutes to quiet Noel, enough to let Dicky loosen his grasp and signal me to get Adams. When the unconscious actor had been taken away, Noel, white-lipped and ignoring Mary, addressed himself to me.

"I was fair the other time," he said. "I put up with everything because of your father's plea. But after this if he thinks I am going to stand by and let Mary go out again alone with that beast, he's mightily mistaken.

"Unless Mary tells me that she wants to go with him, he'll take her only over my dead body. And if she does, I'm through with her."

The Stars Say—

For Saturday, Aug. 29

THE EMPHASIS seems to be on a day of enjoyment, pleasure-seeking, and romance, attended by domestic, social and cultural celebrations, in which the appeal to beauty, art, music and the emotional urges of life are uppermost.

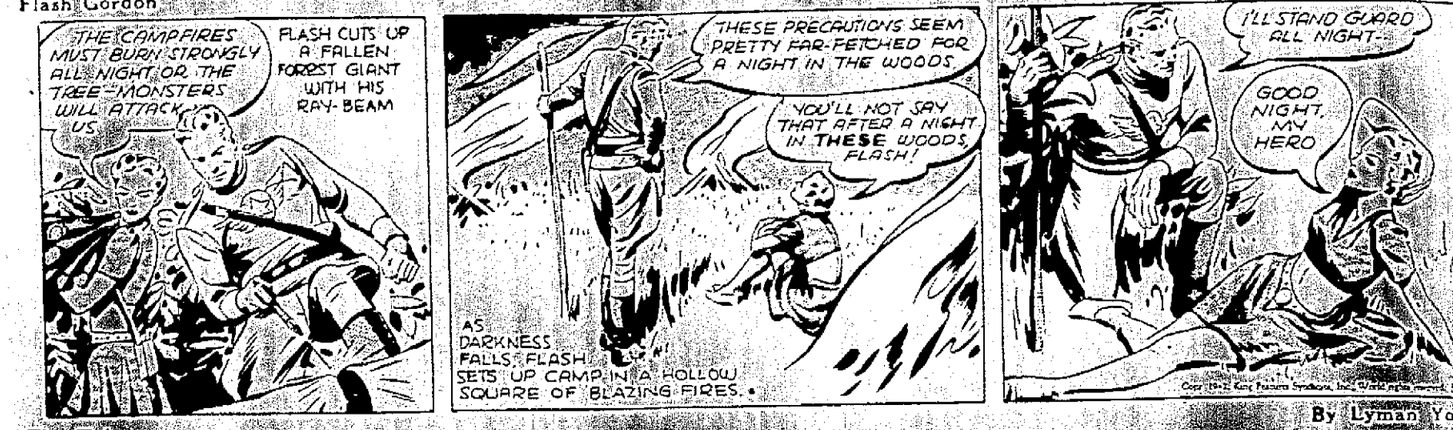

Those whose birthday it is might have a year of definite progress and success, with firm foundations secured by practical and constructive efforts centered on such objectives. But the accent is placed on the lighter and more alluring and enjoyable aspirations in life, with love, romance, social and domestic functions to the fore. Beauty, art, grace and charm seek fulfilment and pleasure, while various forms of self-indulgence may be carried to excess, to be attended by regrettable reactions.

A child born on this day should have much practical ability, skill and energy, with expansive ideas and aims.
